

ABSTRACT

A method of adapting weather radar thresholds is disclosed. The method comprises generating a location from a location sensor, retrieving information representative of a weather type from a database, based on the location, and 5 adjusting, automatically, the threshold for a radar display based on the information.